

Reflect on your roleplay experience

Congratulations! You've now completed a roleplay exercise where you played the role of a business intelligence analyst to build and iterate on a visualization. You considered your client's needs while applying the dashboard design skills you've learned so far. This exercise will prepare you for the case study later in this course, and the many projects you'll work on during your career as a BI professional.

For this discussion prompt, consider the following:

What did you learn while completing this exercise?

How do you think the exercise and its lessons prepared you for your future role as a BI professional?

Did anything about the roleplay surprise you?
